Technology Services Directory now Online

Timmins, ON – September 2004 – Are you looking for a computer technician or web designer, but don't know where to find one? Well, NEOnet's Technology Solutions Directory is here to help you. You can now log on to www.neonet.on.ca to find the profiles and contact information of 40 IT and telecom businesses working right here in Northeastern Ontario. Users can search by product category or service area, which makes it easy to find exactly what you need.

“The online directory promotes information and communications technology businesses in Northeastern Ontario, and makes it easier for consumers to find these providers.” said Christy Marinig, Chair of NEOnet, “Many people think they need to go outside the region to get IT help, but there may be an expert living right next door, and that could save them both time and money. Using local providers also helps build up the northern technology sector.”

If you offer website development, telecom services, computer sales, consulting or other technology products or services, you can still register online and complete your profile. Don't miss this opportunity to advertise your services for free at www.neonet.on.ca.

NEOnet is a regional non-profit information and communication technology development organization. Its region extends from Temagami to Peawanuck and from Hearst to the Québec border.
