NEOnet launches FREE Technology Database

Timmins, ON – June 2004 – NEOnet has launched an online database to promote providers of information and communications technology products and services in Northeastern Ontario. .

The database is available through the NEOnet website to businesses and clients throughout the world! This database will allow providers to list their products and services, and let users search for providers based on products and services, and based on location.

If you offer website development, telecom services, computer sales, consulting or other technology products and services, and would like to be included in the FREE database, contact the project coordinator, Ron Leduc at 705-266-3944 or by email at rleduc@neonet.on.ca, or visit to NEOnet website www.neonet.on.ca to register.
